Police Chief Declares Matrimony Good Thing.

SETTLES A GRAVE QUESTION

Members of the Baltimore Force to Be Paid Benefits for Second Wife's Death-Further Asserts that Assessments Will Be Levied Up to the Fourth Loss of Life Partner.

first wife, I believe in his getting another

So spoke Thomas F. Farnan, head of the Baltimore police department and president of the board of governors of the police beneficial association, this morn ing. The marshal's statement was made at a special meeting of the board of governors of the association, which assembled to consider the question, "Should the association, after paying 50 cents dues per capita to a member from whom death has taken his marital partner, pay dues a second time if the member should marry again, and lose his second wife?"

"Matrimony is a good thing. If it's good and proper to be married once, it's good address on the U. C. man can support a wife and family.

"I know a member of the department who has buried his fourth wife. The wives were unfortunate; the man was fortunate in getting good women to share his lot. After having an experience with one good woman whom Providence thought best to remove from earth, he tried for another one and got her, and so on. Why shouldn't he? And why should he be discouraged by any amendments and by-laws?

There are too many amount if the by-laws in almost everything, but I'll be-er-confounded if they ought to apply to matrimony, or how many wives a man must have, unless he tries to have two at the same time.
